HEALTH AND SAFETY AWARENESS FOR ONTARIO WORKERS

Ontario's Occupational Health and Safety Act defines a worker as "a person who performs work or supplies services for monetary compensation." In Ontario, workers are required to complete a basic occupational health and safety awareness training program as soon as is reasonably possible. The purpose of this course is to fulfill that regulatory requirement under the Occupational Health and Safety Awareness and Training Regulation.

This online course is designed to provide workers with a general introduction to workplace health and safety. Additionally, this training will focus on worker rights and responsibilities under the Occupational Health and Safety Act.

Who should take this course?

New and existing workers within Ontario workplaces.

Course Overview

Upon completion of this course, participants will:

- Be familiar with the Occupational Health and Safety Act
