MANAGING WORKPLACE HAZARDS

Employers are responsible for ensuring that their employees are working safely and in compliance with the appropriate OH&S (Occupational Health & Safety) regulations.  An essential part of any good, safe work practice is the ability to assess hazards at the worksite and mitigate the risks as required.  Ensuring your worksite is safe helps protect employees and prevents fines for non-compliance with Provincial and Federal laws.  Yet it can be challenging to determine all of the potential hazards in the workplace and identify the controls required to keep employees safe.

Training Solution – Online Managing Workplace Hazards Course

This course is designed to identify workplace hazards and implement control measures to ensure a safe work environment.  Assessing hazards to ensure a safe worksite can improve worker morale, lower absenteeism, increase productivity as well as reduce downtime, clean-up costs, and damage to the environment.

Course Overview

Upon completing Managing Workplace Hazards, participants will learn about:

- Costs of workplace accidents
- Regulations that require a company to ensure a safe worksite
- Due diligence concepts
- How to identify safety hazards, health hazards, and unsafe behaviours
- How to eliminate hazards
- How to implement hazard controls
- Information on safety management programs
- How to identify safety-critical tasks
